Apera supports FLEX Capital in the refinancing of neeyo

Apera Asset Management ("Apera"), a leading pan-European mid-market private debt investor, is delighted to announce the successful arrangement of bespoke debt facilities for neeyo (the “Company”), which is a portfolio company of funds advised by FLEX Capital.

neeyo is a leading provider of mission-critical, end-to-end customer communication management ("CCM") software that enables clients to fully automate their business-critical digital and physical customer communications. The software transforms raw data from multiple sources into individualised, regulatory-compliant documents, validates them before dispatch, routes them to the appropriate distribution channels and archives them thereafter.

Building on a close and trusted working relationship, Apera and FLEX Capital have jointly crafted a financing solution tailored specifically to neeyo's needs. The package positions the Company to accelerate its next stage of expansion as a leading DACH provider of customer communications management and document output software.

Peter Reischauer, Managing Partner at FLEX Capital, said: “Closing this financing opens the next stage of our journey together with Apera. With a partner that combines flexible, customised structuring with real depth of experience, we are well equipped to accelerate our growth ambitions in what we consider a highly attractive market.”

Philipp Ströhle, Principal at Apera, added: "neeyo is ideally positioned within one of the most resilient and structurally growing areas of enterprise software, combining a highly scalable platform with significant potential for further expansion across the DACH region and beyond. We are delighted to partner with FLEX Capital and look forward to supporting the Company as a reliable, long-term financing partner as it embarks on this next stage of growth.”
